- The programme supports workshop decision-making and personal sharing
- Participants are treated as equals, with dignity, compassion, mutual respect and unconditional high regard
- There is unconditional acceptance of each person as they are – unique, special individuals, including acceptance of diversity with relation to culture, ethnicity, language, religion, race, gender, disability, sexual identity and readiness issues
- Participants are given the opportunity to explore choices and options and are not expected to find simple, final answers
- All the participation is voluntary
- It is understood that each person is an expert on himself/herself
- The focus is on individual strengths and away from perceived deficits
- The programme emphasises strategies that are simple and safe for anyone, and it stays away from strategies that may have harmful effects
- The focus is on peers working together and learning from each other to increase mutual understanding, knowledge and promote wellness
- Difficult feelings and behaviours are seen as normal responses to traumatic circumstances and in the context of what is happening and not as symptoms or a diagnosis
- There is unconditional acceptance of all creative work and expression that are created or brought to each session. The creator is always in control of the work
- Each session supports the premise that there is hope, that people can get well, stay well for long periods of time and do the things they want to do with their lives
